NEWS BRIEFS

Rocket Soars 130 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Scout rocket was shot 130 miles into the sky from Wallops Island, Va., on Tuesday and within hours space agency scientists in Washington were studying data from the heat-shielding test.

A spokesman said the test was successful and analysis would take some time because of the large amount of data obtained, including information normally lost during the customary "radio blackout" of a re-entering spacecraft.

Nevada Fires Out Of Control

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — Much of northeastern Nevada was declared a disaster area by Gov. Grant Sawyer Tuesday as six major range fires burned uncontrolled.

Sawyer, in Washington, D.C., appealed to the White House to send all possible aid in four Nevada counties, already under warlike mobilization in efforts to halt the waves of fire that burned 275,000 acres.

Portions of the fires were contained. Whether fire lines held depended largely on winds and humidity.

Congress Told: 'Not Our Fight'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance told Congress on Tuesday that the United States, despite its buildup of troops in Viet Nam, looks on the war there as primarily South Viet Nam's fight and not its own.

But, he quickly added, "We have repeatedly made clear — and intend to continue to make clear — our commitment to support the South Vietnamese government's efforts to achieve victory."

Johnson Hosts Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will meet Saturday with the nation's Democratic governors to talk about affairs of state and, without much doubt, election year politics.

Before he does that, however, Johnson will take a bipartisan stance Wednesday night and entertain all members of Congress —Democrats and Republicans — to thank them personally for passing major administration programs.

Malaysians Kill 2 Indonesians

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian defense forces killed two Indonesian invaders and captured several others in a mopping-up operation against a force that landed on Malay's coast, the Defense Ministry announced Tuesday.

In Jakarta, a spokesman for the Indonesian Foreign Ministry brushed aside Malaysia's claim of an Indonesian invasion of the Malaysian mainland.

6 Killed, 3 Hurt In Two-Car Crash

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP)— State police said six persons were reported killed and three injured in a two-car collision Tuesday night on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near here.

An officer said the collision occurred about two miles west of the Beaver Falls interchange.

He said all the victims were taken to Providence Hospital in Beaver Falls.

No other details were immediately available.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels and motors helped pace the stock market to an irregular rise Tuesday even while some merger-minded rails took sharp losses. Trading was moderate.

Volume climbed to 4.21 million shares from 3.78 million Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average made a moderate gain of 2.62 at 842.83.

Democratic Platform Pledges Excise, Income Tax Reduction

All's Quiet In Dixmoor

DIXMOOR, Ill. (AP) — An uneasy quiet settled Tuesday over this predominantly Negro suburb southwest of Chicago, scene of two nights of rioting in which 50 to 60 persons were injured and more than 70 arrested.

Authorities said a warning, spread by word of mouth and sound trucks, that outsiders bent on coming into the area for public discussion of the trouble would be arrested was instrumental in holding down disorder Tuesday.

Police Patrols

Police of Dixmoor and adjoining Harvey, state troopers and sheriff's deputies patroled business streets in the two towns.

Sheriff Richard Olgivie said in a statement, "Vandalism in the area has diminished because local leaders have been exerting their influence on the inhabitants."

Clergymen, civic leaders, police and civil rights leaders offered various opinions as to the cause of the violence and its continuation.

However, the apparent fuse that ignited the siege of rock-throwing and window-smashing vandalism was the alleged theft of a bottle of gin worth less than $3.

Some ministers blamed unemployment in this community of about 3,000 persons and in neighboring Harvey for the disturbance.

Small Army

Ogilvie, whose deputies were thrown into the small army of lawmen from half a dozen other suburbs of Chicago to help check Sunday's first outbursts, told newsmen the violence was mainly the fault of "a breakdown of family discipline."

Ogilvie said the biggest problem of law officers patroling the scene "is with the teen-agers, young kids who think this is a lark."

Some clergymen criticized the use of trained police dogs and tear gas.

Sidney Finley, field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, sent telegrams to federal, state and local authorities asking "an immediate complete and thorough investigation of police tactics and techniques with regard to the use of police dogs and tear gas."

Finley said the rioting that started again Monday night could have been avoided had there not been an "evident state of confusion within the ranks of law enforcement personnel."

The trouble began Saturday about a liquor store on Sibley Boulevard, also known as 147th Street, in Dixmoor.

"Bib Mike" Lapota

"Big Mike" Lapota, owner of the store, called police to arrest a Negro woman he alleged had stolen a bottle of gin. He said he had to use force to hold her while awaiting police. The woman claimed he struck her.

On Sunday, Negroes carrying placards picketed the liquor store.

Then a rumor swept through a small crowd of Negroes that Lapota had beaten up the woman.

In minutes, the crowd became angered and smashed windows in the store. Men grabed liquor from the display windows. Others began throwing rocks at the building and soon missiles were being thrown at passing automobiles.

Most of the 50 or so injured Sunday were innocent passengers in automobiles driving by the scene of rioting.

Douglas Dillon

State Feedback Is Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic platform pledges of excise tax reduction next year, income tax cuts later, and possibly an eventual "generous" feedback of federal revenues to the states were foreshadowed by top administration officials Tuesday.

Testimony

In testimony to the Democratic Platform Committee, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Chairman Walter W. Heller of the President's Council of Economic Advisers gave a go-ahead, in effect, to planks matching the liberal tax-cut promises of the Republican party.

Rosy Prospect

The rosy prospect of tax relief was based on rising revenues from the record prosperity which in 3½ years, Heller proclaimed, has built "the strongest economic base any nation has ever had for the fulfillment of its goals and aspirations."

The 102 delegates who are drafting a platform for approval at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, N.J., next week, listened with interest and obvious approval as they were told:

— By Dillon, that "next year is the time" for a congressional review and action on the whole excise tax structure, with reduction or elimination of some of the sales levies. The Treasury will be ready with recommendations next session, he announced.

— By Dillon again, that further reduction in income taxes, beyond the $11.5-billion general tax reduction of this year, should be possible in the years ahead.

A Dividend

— By Heller, that the government should consider "declaring a dividend to the American people' out of the prospective $6-billion average yearly increase in federal tax collections. This might take the form of further tax reduction or enlarged federal investment in growth-stimulating programs, the White House economist said.

But he added this third suggestion: "Or perhaps some means could be found for declaring a large dividend to out hard-pressed states and local units."

The platform on which Republicans hope to recapture the White House in November proposes tax credits, deductions or cuts in a half-dozen sections. It specifically pledges "removal of the wartime federal excise taxes. . . on pens, pencils, jewelry, cosmetics, luggage, handbags, wallets and toiletries."

Makarios Eases Blockade Of 5 Cypriot Villages

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The United Nations announced Tuesday night that Greek Cypriot President Makarios has agreed to ease the Greek Cypriot blockade cutting off fuel, food and water to surrounded Turkish Cypriot towns and villages.

A U.N. statement on the blockade issue referred particularly to Nicosia, Kitma, Kokkona, Lefka and Limnites — areas of the biggest Turkish Cypriot population.

Military Security

However, it said Makarios insisted that easing of the restrictions must not prejudice "normal military security measures."

In particular, the statement said, the agreement would permit renewed water supplies to the west coast town of Kitma, where surrounded Turkish Cypriots have been forced to depend on brackish wells that U.N. experts consider unfit for human consumption.

Modification of the restriction around the embattled Turkish communities could dampen a dangerous source of friction. However, the U.N. statement omitted some areas of Turkish concentration and several of the agreements were called provisional.

Heated Discussions

The agreements were reached by the U.N. commander, Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya of India, and Galo Plaza Lasso, Secretary-General U Thant's special representative, after a long session with Makarios. Reliable informants said Makarios gave in only after heated discussions.

The prospective easing of the economic pressure on the Turkish-blooded minority was disclosed after President Johnson advised Makarios the way to solve the Cyprus problem is to cooperate with the U.N. commander "in restoring peace and refraining from any action that might exacerbate the situation."

"I see no acceptable alternative but that all parties move actively toward these Security Council goals," Johnson said in a message delivered by U.S. Ambassador Taylor Belcher to the Greek Cypriot leader Monday night. "The United States is prepared to do everything within its power to help."

Johnson's Message

Johnson's message was in reply to an appeal for aid that Makarios dispatched to the U.S. chief executive and other world leaders Aug. 9, when strafing and bombing from Turkish jets stalled an offensive by Greek Cypriots fighting to wipe out Turkish Cypriot holdings on the northwest coast.

A U.N.-sponsored cease-fire, accepted by both Cyprus and Turkey, halted the hostilities. Two days later Makarios declared in a radio broadcast the Greek Cypriot people were determined to fight on — "alone or with others.' But the truce held.

LBJ Signs Hospital Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed legislation Tuesday providing $1.4 billion for building and modernizing hospitals, nursing homes and other health facilities over the next five years.

At a White House Cabinet room ceremony attended by a delegation of Congress members and government officials in the health field, Johnson declared. "The 88th Congress is, I am happy to say, the 'better health Congress.' It has done more than any other Congress to provide the health facilities and the health manpower that the American people ought to have."

Hill-Burton

The bill extends for five years the Hill-Burton Act which since its enactment 17 years ago, Johnson said, has added 300,000 hospital and nursing home beds and nearly 2,000 other health facilities.

Americans, the President said, have always been "great hospital builders" and "our record on hospital beds is good." But, Johnson said, the record on nursing home beds is not so good.

"Today, for every 10 hospital beds our growing population requires, eight are already in place and available for use," Johnson said, adding: "For every 10 nursing home beds that are needed to provide long-term care for older citizens, only four beds are in service now. With our population over 65 increasing by 1,000 every 24 hours, we need to catch up and this legislation that your congressmen have passed will help us do that."

Watusi Warriors Kill 2 UN Workers

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congo rebels in Kivu Province and Watusi warriors hacked two French U.N. experts with machetes and finished them with a burst of submachine-gun fire, a survivor said Tuesday.

"Gentlemen, we are here to help you and not for anything else," one Frenchman cried as the crowd hurled itself upon the two with machetes.

Aid Mission

Slain Monday on a mission to aid the Watusi, tall, fierce warriors who are refugees from neighboring Rwanda, were Francois Preziosi, representative in Bukavu of the U.N. High Commission for Refugees, and Jean Plicque, head of the Bukavu branch office of the International Labor Organization.

They were killed near Kalehe, north of Bukavu on Lake Kivu in the eastern Congo. They were trying to reach a camp harboring Watusis who had fled from Rwanda.

Driver Knifed

Their Congolese driver, George Yogolero, was knifed in the arm but managed to flee. Yogolero told how the Frenchmen were cut down when Plicque was found to be carrying a pistol under his shirt.

Yogolero said the local mwami — king — of Kalonge had warned the two Frenchmen that the Watusis sympathized with Communist-backed rebels who have been threatening Bukavu. But Plicque and Preziosi insisted on going to the refugee camp.

In his report to the United Nations, Yogolero told how he had begged the two Frenchmen to turn back when he spotted armed men hiding in the bushes by the roadside.

Submachine Guns

The men carried submachine guns, rifles and Molotov cocktails, he said.

"After continuing another 500 yards, the car was stopped by a crowd consisting of Congolese, who wore rebel armbands, and had modern weapons," Yogolero said.

The Watusis, some seven feet tall, carried spears and machetes.

A U.N. announcement said the two men were investigating reports on planned reprisals against certain refugees in the camp, at Nyakalonge, about 25 miles northwest of Bukavu.

Reports from Bukavu said the two officials planned to advise the Watusi to stay away from politics and not to join the Congolese rebels retreating toward the camp.

Hurricane Diane 9th Anniversary Passes Quietly

STROUDSBURG — Every man, woman and child who was living in Monroe County on Aug. 18, 1955, will never forget the happenings of that day.

Why? That was the day Hurricane Diane struck the Poconos with devastating force and claimed the lives of 79 people and caused millions of dollars worth of damage to homes, businesses, industries and public utilities.

Yesterday was the ninth anniversary of that — the blackest day in the history of the county.

Everyone will remember the first account of the flood in The Daily Record, when screaming headlines read: "22 Known Dead; Scores Missing; Heaviest Toll Taken In East Stroudsburg."

Then came reports of Camp David and 24 more victims. From there the toll mounted to the final 79.

Most of the scars of the flood have disappeared. In their place, flood control dikes line the banks of the Brodheads and McMichaels Creeks. Had they been there nine years ago, much of the damage and loss of life might have been avoided.

Sen. Keating To Run Free Of Goldwater

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating said Tuesday he will seek reelection independently of the national ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Keating told a news conference that, "I cannot in good conscience conceal my convictions behind a facade of conformity disguised as unity." He said he did not intend to pay lip service.

Clare Booth Luce

The senator's independent stand made it virtually certain that he would be opposed by Clare Boothe Luce, author, one-time diplomat and former congresswomen, as the candidate of the Conservative party.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has strong backing for the Democratic nomination, to be determined next Tuesday.

The white-haired Keating, 64, told more than 100 newsmen at the Overseas Press Club: "I stated right after the Republican National Convention that as far as my own political future is concerned, the maintenance of the principles which have always guided me in public life is more important than election to public office."

Position Unchanged

He said that remained his position "no matter what the consequences are to me personally."

"Specifically," Keating continued, "I have said before and I repeat that I consider Sen. Goldwater a sincere, patriotic American. But, during our service in the Senate, Sen. Goldwater and I have disagreed on many issues."

"He has voted his convictions as a senator from Arizona and I have voted my convictions as a senator from New York. Nothing either of us does at this point can alter our records on the issues."

Deep Differences

Keating said the people of New York are aware of "the deep differences" between his and Goldwater's records.

"I seriously doubt," he said, "that any voter in New York could be impressed by any lip service that I might give Sen. Goldwater or that he might give me in the name of party unity."

The senator stressed that although he differed with the party's nominee for president, he was running as a Republican — that he would neither support nor vote for President Johnson.

PIDA Okays $85,400 Loan For Redmond

STROUDSBURG — The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority yesterday gave tentative approval to an application by Pocono Mountains Industries, Inc. for a loan of $85,400 to construct a new building for Redmond Finishing Co. in East Stroudsburg.

The approval was one of 13 given by PIDA for loans totaling $1,994,332.

Montgomery F. Crowe, president of PMI, which is the industrial arm of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, said last night, "This is just another instance of the chamber working for increased employment in the community.

Crowe also said PMI was instrumental in securing local financing of $75,000, which will also be used to finance the $160,000 building.

Julius Ginsberg, president of Redmond, said the new building will make room for 50 additional jobs. He said the company was working to capacity with around the clock work for its present 80 employees.

Ginsberg said work on the new building would start in two or three weeks and will be built on land presently owned by the company.

He also said the company is planning to buy 15 acres in the Lincoln Ave. urban renewal project in East Stroudsburg. The project is located directly behind Redmond's present plant.

S. Viet Set For Trouble

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Authorities of Saigon and Hue are on the alert for possible trouble Thursday from Buddhists. That is the first anniversary of the pagoda raids in which hundreds of monks and nuns were arrested by the late Ngo Dinh Diem's security forces.

Minor Demonstration

There was a minor demonstration Monday night in Hue, a Buddhist center 400 miles north of Saigon, against the newly revamped government of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, himself a Buddhist.

About 500 students marched through Hue in a torchlight procession, halting at intervals to make speeches highly critical of the government. They attracted large crowds. Though demonstrations are banned under a state of emergency decree, police did not interfere.

Sound Trucks

Through banners and a sound truck, the group demanded that military officers turn the government in Saigon over to civilians and return to their units.

They also demanded the government settle Buddhist grievances resulting from an incident about three weeks ago in central Viet Nam's Binh Dinh Province, in which some rural houses were burned by local officials.

U.S. and Vietnamese officials did not regard the students' activity as dangerous in itself. But much more serious trouble in Hue was possible Thursday, they said.

Anniversary

Besides being the anniversary of the pagoda raids, it is the date given a week ago by the local Buddhist leader, Thich Thien Minh, as the deadline by which the government should solve Buddhist problems.

Boy Lands 400 Pound Fish After 19 Hour Battle

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Weak from fatigue, 15-year-old Tom Joyner Jr. got his fish Tuesday after a marathon battle of nearly 19 hours, but he had some help.

Sting Ray

After single-handedly fighting a sting ray weighing nearly 400 pounds through a long night, several hours under a blazing sun, and finally through a driving rainstorm, Tom allowed divers to gaff and haul his catch to the beach.

It weighed 370 pounds.

Until then, it had been a standoff, with Tom playing the fish for 17 hours from the 600-foot-long Patrick Air Force Base pier, and finally climbing into a boat to continue the fight in the Atlantic Ocean.

Use Of Boat

Use of the boat, and the help in beaching the ray, kept Tom from regaining the record for the pier, scene of numerous battles by youthful anglers.

Thousands of spectators came and went during the day. Air police were called out to handle a massive traffic jam.

Tom suffered a disappointment at midmorning, when two divers swam out to identify his catch as a sting ray. He had hoped that it would be a more highly prized game fish.

"But I'm still proud of him," said Tom's father, Air Force Sgt. Thomas Joyner, who also stuck with the boy from the beginning.

98-Pound Test Line

When Tom hooked the ray, 300 of the 400 yards of 98-pound test line screamed off his reel.

Like the ancient fisherman in "The Old Man and the Sea," who lost a giant marlin to sharks after a heroic battle, Tom struggled through the night. He was never able to haul the ray closer than 200 yards to the pier.

Showed Distress

Before the end of the night, the boy showed some distress. Friends worked to keep him awake.

He rallied at daybreak and, as news of his fight spread through the nearby missile community, the crowd began to build.

His reel grew hot, burning his hands through heavy gloves, and his father sprayed it with water.

His parents brought him food, but in the excitement he was unable to eat anything except a chocolate bar and part of a ham sandwich.

PUC Approves Phone Rate Hike

HARRISBURG (AP) — Rates are going up, starting Sept. 1, for 279 Susquehanna County, Pa. customers of the Southern Counties Telephone Co. of Appalachin, N.Y.

The Public Utility Commission approved the increase Tuesday, claiming the new rates will be on a par with those charged by the company in the Hawleytown area of New York.

Special Plate Request High

HARRISBURG (AP)—At least 10,000 Pennsylvania motorists are interested enough to pay an additional $10 a piece to get special license plates for their cars next year — or $12 a piece if they're driving station wagons.

The Bureau of Motor Vehicles in the State Revenue Department said Monday that it has received about 10,000 applications for the special plates authorized by law in 1963.

The department hopes to raise about $1 million with the gimmick. Officials are pleased with the response to date.

PUC Approves Gas Rate Cut

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Public Utility Commission authorized a $36,300 a year rate increase today for the Citizens Electric Co. of Lewisburg, starting Aug. 25.

The boost will affect 3,648 customers in Union and Northumberland counties.

A total of 2,833 residential customers will save $14,200 under the plan, the PUC said. Another 162 commercial users will receive a $12,700 reduction and 16 industrial customers will have their bills lowered by $9,400.

The company said the savings reflect a cut in cost of purchased electric power and lower income taxes.

Wilkes-Barre Councilman Quits

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Dr. Ellis W. Roberts resigned Tuesday as a member of the Wilkes-Barre City Council. Dr. Roberts was director of accounts and finance.

Deputy Finance Director Duddy also resigned.

Dr. Roberts said expanding duties at Wilkes-Barre Business College, of which he is president caused him to resign.

Mason Gets State Award

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Karl M. Mason, director of the Bureau of Environmental Health in the state Health Department, Tuesday was presented with the Pennsylvania Public Health Association's annual Award of Merit.

Mason received the award during a luncheon held in conjunction with the 13th annual state Health Conference.

He was honored for his work in air pollution control, clean streams and leadership in "initiating health programs of daily benefit to Pennsylvania."

Horsepower Increased

HARRISBURG (AP) — The maximum limit on boat motors used on Pymatuning Lake on the Pennsylvania-Ohio line has been raised from six to 10 horsepower, Forests and Waters Secretary Maurice K. Goddard reminded Pennsylvanians yesterday. The increase was authorized by a resolution signed into law by President Johnson last month, Goddard said.

Asks For Control Shift

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—State Sen. William Lane, D-Wash., called for a shift from state to county control.

Lane, addressing the 78th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Commissioners, said the responsibility carried by county officials has grown immeasurably, and that the next ten years would find even greater expansion in their duties.

Lane pointed to Pennsylvania growth rates as evidence of the increased burdens placed upon county government. He observed that the result of these new responsibilities has been greater cooperation between different counties.

The Pennsylvania Story

Dollar Dandies

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — The busiest people on Capitol Hill these days are the departmental dollar dandies, more sedately known as budget bureau directors.

They are huddling with the bureaucratic clan to find a way to juggle things around so that no more dollars will be spent in fiscal 1965 (starting next July 1) than in the current year — a major miracle.

The word from budget boss Marty Brackbill is "hold the line."

The word from program people in the departments is "we need more for this and that."

The word from the taxpayer is "ouch."

And the edict from on high is no more taxes. So the pressure is on all around, with more for education and highways being demanded, more General State Authority rentals falling due for all those fine buildings going up on bonded loans; more federal money for mental health and retardation to be matched, and higher prices the state must pay for most of the things it buys.

All that talk about the current billion dollar budget — you might as well face it — is a of hookum. That's only the General Fund. A hard look under the Capitol dome shows the startling figure of more than two billion a year in total State operations, but it isn't all "tax money", at least in a legal sense. And much of it is not appropriated by the Legislature.

For example, employers put up about $225 million a year for the big unemployment compensation operation. Something like $100 million a year is spent by the General State Authority for construction. The State Public School Building Authority disburses about $35 million on buildings. It costs more than $20 millin operate the Pennsylvania Turnpike and about $38 million to run the state liquor store system (which bought $178 million worth of liquor and wine last year) and is pushing the $100 million figure in annual tax collection and profits). But you don't see this in the General Fund budget.

Nor do you see the $566 million Highways Department. This agency has an exclusive budget of its own, known as the motor fund and gets seads of federal money to help fight traffic jams with more and better highways.

Additionally, the State Highway and Bridge Authority, is working with a $30 million kitty this year.

Then there are the fish and game funds, also outside the general budget. The Game Commission is a $5 million operation and the Fish Commission (that of the secret meetings) angles around with $2.7 million a year. These agencies are supported by hunting and fishing license fees.

A lot of little deals—oh, just a few million — hardly worth mentioning in the billion-dollar league, include such things as the $16 million given to the counties from the State gasoline tax collections; boroughs, townships and cities where liquor licenses are in operation get $6 million a year — the full amount of every retail liquor and beer license dollar paid to the state; about $3.7 million from the premiums tax on out-of-state fire insurance companies is also distributed to localities. Funds collected from out-of-state casualty insurance premiums go to local police retirement systems.

As "Project 70" swings into operation to buy future "open space" more dollars outside the budget will be used to buy lands for a vast State recreation and conservation system. This will be financed by sale of state bonds, of the "full faith and credit" type, which means they are backed by the taxing powers of the Legislature, as contrasted to the "Authority" type bonds which depend on rental and-or revenue from completed projects for eventual repayment.

All this is why the "general fund budget" covers less than half the total State public agency activity. And why so few persons really know the scope of state functions. The independent boards and Authorities are pretty big stuff on their own — and still growing.

Revised Appalachia Bill Faces Republican Challenge

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Despite a recent face-lifting for the Appalachia bill, Republicans still find it unattractive.

When the bill for economic development of an 11-state Appalachian region ran into strong Republican opposition during hearings, the Administration drafted another bill designed to overcome several objections to the program. Despite these changes, however, the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1964 appears to be headed for a partisan fight when it reaches the House floor.

HR 11946, a substitute measure for HR 11065, was reported out of the House Public Works Committee July 31 with all Republicans on the Committee opposed to it except for three Republicans from states eligible for assistance under the bill — William H. Harsha Jr. (Ohio), John C. Kunkel (Pa.) and James H. Quillen (Tenn.).

Changes in the Bill

The second bill dropped the Appalachian Development Corp. which had been designed to provide capital for community development program. Republicans and business groups such as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Assn. of Manufacturers objected to the creation of the corporation, and particularly to the provision allowing the corporation to borrow from the Treasury up to 10 times the sum of its capital. Opponents of the bill charged that this was "backdoor spending" over which Congress would have no control.

Hearings also revealed that a more popular program, particularly with the Appalachian state governors, was construction of a development highway system. The second Administration bill increased the authorization for highway funds from $645 million to $840 million.

Republicans on the Committee, nevertheless, filed a strongly worded protest in the Committee report on HR 11946, charging that the bill was "hastily drawn, poorly conceived, ineffective and costly." The Republicans complained that President Johnson's "second installment" of his poverty war had been proposed "With much fanfare and obviously with an eye to the Presidential election later this year . . ."

The President has included both the anti-poverty bill and the Appalachian bill on his "must' list of 30 bills which he wants Congress to act on this year. The Administration views the two bills as complementary, not competing.

Objectives of Program

According to the Administration, the anti-poverty bill deals with "human resources" (education and training of people) while the Appalachia bill is directed toward improving the environment.

The Appalachia programs are designed to construct and operate health facilities, improve and develop pastureland, improve timber productivity, develop water resources, reclaim coal lands, and construct highways and sewage treatment control facilities.

But the Republicans say these programs would provide "preferential treatment" for one region of the country" and thereby discriminate against other areas . . . with equal or greater unemployment and lack of economic development." They argue that many of the 355 counties designated for aid under the bill are prosperous, and that the bill set no standards based on need to determine eligibility for the federal grants-in-aid in the bill.

HR 11946 authorized the bulk of its money (80 percent—$840 million) for construction of a development highway system and most of the remainder ($235 million) for the other resources programs listed above. In addition, the bill created an Appalachian Regional Commission and authorized $2.2 million for its operation.

Although HR 11946 provided that the program would expire June 30, 1970, the money for all programs except the highway system was authorized only for two fiscal years. This procedure was designed to force the Administration to come back before Congress after that time for additional money, thus allowing Congress to review the progress of the program.

Bangor Water 'Basically Suitable'

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council yesterday received assurance from the Pocono Bilogical Laboratories that water in Bangor is "basically suitable" for use.

Arthur M. Slee, director of the laboratories, refuted a report that the water had been claimed by the laboratories as unfit for human consumption.

The report had been made by Councilman Albert Jones, who allegedly raised misgivings about borough water in a July letter to Sen. Hugh Scott.

Slee said that with proper chlorination or other treatment the water is "suitable from a sanitary standpoint —if treated."

Slee said problems of unpleasant taste and laundry difficulties from treated water were not a health concern of the laboratories.

ESSC Admits 625 Freshmen, Rejects 2,500 Applicants

EAST STROUDSBURG—Only 625 freshmen, from an applicant list of over 3300, will be admitted to East Stroudsburg State College for the 1964 fall term according to Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, president of the college.

Although it will be the largest entering Freshmen group in the college's history, Dr. Koehler said that approximately 2500 young men and women on the applicant list of over 3300 had to be denied admission, though many were qualified and deserving, due to limitations in physical plant facilities necessary to accommodate students.

"It is disheartening that so many had to be refused on the basis of physical space limitations" said the president, "but the state and the college are working as rapidly as possible to plan, finance and construct additional facilities that will enable the entrance of more youth seeking the collegiate education."

The Director of Admissions at East Stroudsburg State College, Dr. Theodore M. Moore, to illustrate further, said that "At this very moment there are over 200 qualified applicants on the waiting list for January 1965 entrance. This figure includes only those who have met all qualifications and completed their entrance credentials."

Dr. Moore concluded by stating that there are many more applicants who have indicated a desire to be placed on the entrance waiting list.

Waring Workshop Production At Shawnee Tomorrow Night

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Fred Waring's workshop of 200-strong youth band and choral groups will present free to the public a production tomorrow night.

The concert, starting at 8 p. m. in the Ormandy handshell at Shawnee Inn, will be informal. Those who attend are asked to bring their own folding chairs or blankets. It will be the first time the production will be open to the public formerly only parents viewed the results of the two-week course.

"All music lovers in the Poconos are more than welcome to see the results of the two-week session. These kids worked hard to produce this show. I'm sure the results will be more than gratifying," Waring said, last night in extending an invitation to the general public.

The concert will feature special Pennsylvanians acts, blended with a full-scale production under the guidance of the workshop staff.

The workshop, held Aug. 9 through 24, has 200 participants between the ages of 16 and 21. It was initiated in 1955 after eight years of sessions for adult musicians only, and marks the close of the Waring school for the summer season.

Enrollment is limited to talented young people of good character and a sense of responsibility. Workshoppers may even request an audition for membership in the Pennsylvanians, Waring's world famous choral group.

Faculty at the sessions, besides Waring, include such well known figures as Charles Webb, Dr. John Raymond, Luigi Zatinelli, Jack Best, Helen Garlington, Ray Sax Schroeder and many others.

Students achieve guidance in the wide variety of styles and techniques required in today's professional music world. The workshop offers concentrated help and a program of continuing progress in technical proficiency.

Visiting artists and practical experience in recording under professional conditions are also featured.

Waring said the public concert will offer an introduction to showmanship, stage deportment and backstage know-how. He explained that the concert had been limited to parents of workshoppers in the past because of space limitations.

Some Volkswagen owners look down on other Volkswagen owners.

When you graduate from a Volkswagen Sedan to a Volkswagen Station Wagon, you really step up in the world.
The Station Wagon stands a good foot taller than other cars.
And it holds more than the biggest conventional wagon you can find.
But the VW Wagon isn't only tall.
It's also short.
We saved 4 feet of hood in front by putting the engine in back.
Big as it is inside, it's only 9 inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan.
So people who move up to the high-slung model still feel very much at home.
They park in the same little spots.
They still don't worry about freezing or boiling; the engine is air-cooled.
They still go a long way on a gallon of gas (about 24 miles) and a very long way on a set of tires (about 30,000 miles).
And it just tickles them to drive one Volkswagen and be able to look down on a million others.

Slap At Soviet Russia?

Could it be that Chinese-instigated action against U. S. warships in the Gulf of Tonkin off N. Viet Nam was a veiled slap at Soviet Russia?

Some commentators on the world scene seem to think so.

Such an idea wouldn't be incredible. For several years, Russian communism has been diverging from Chinese communism like a sturdy tree split down the middle.

Russia has taken the stand that all would be lost in a total nuclear confrontation. China has taken the opposite stand —that the populous communist world would profit most from a worldwide conflagration.

Naturally, with one fourth of the world's three billion population, Red China's survivors would probably far outnumber the survivors of Russia and the United States put together.

It is a cruel idea—but it is a cruel game they play.

The Sino-Soviet split, as the rift in world communism is known, has roots deep in racial and nationalistic lines.

China considers itself the seat of the world culture. Most other countries are viewed as Johnny-come-lately barbarians. This includes the Russians.

Recently, for its own gain, China has alligned itself with the non-white populations of the world. It has courted the Asians, with whom it is closely akin; it has courted the black people of the world, whose latent distrust of the white man it hopes to exploit.

Even now, in the Congo, the Red rebels are carrying orders and messages given by the Red Chinese.

China has openly stated that the way to Negro equality in America is through violence.

Across the world, in the non-white areas, China has proffered its dogma of hate and violence. It has fomented unrest and revolution wherever the white man has sown the seeds of hate through his blind bigotry.

To the Red Chinese, Russia is a European country. It has said so many times over. It has grouped the Soviet Union with the west along racial lines.

All of this has left the Soviet Union in a rather untenable position. It has produced graphs of land masses and population charts to show that most of its area and people are Asian.

This evidently means little to the Red Chinese. They are determined to bring about a communist world in their own way: through war. Russia's realistic attitude, that is, its realization that war will mean self-destruction — doesn't seem to interest the Chinese.

So, might it not be possible that Peking told Hanoi to create a fuss in Tonkin Bay, hoping to show the world that Russia would not rush to the aid of its communist brother, but that China would give all possible assistance?

"Russia fights with weapons for Hungary, for Berlin, for other white nations and areas, but it allows Asians to be exploited by U. S. aggressors," China might say to non-white nations.

In this sense, the racial struggle within the United States is but a reflection of the wider, global struggle just described.

The same motivations spur on both conflicts.

This is why is it so emphatically important for America to peaceably settle its racial conflict—and settle it so that the Negro is free.

Only then, when American good faith is shown, and the image of the white-hooded racists drops away, will the generous heart of America be known to the non-white world.

Only then will the Chinese lies fall on deaf ears.

Comment Of The Day

"It is by no means a matter of indifference to the people which circles will step to the helm of the main imperialist power—whether forces capable of more or less soberly assessing world developments, or those which in their animal fear of the inexorable course of history are capable of plunging the world into the abyss of thermonuclear disaster."

—Viktor Korionov, Russian political commentator, on recent developments in the 1964 race for the U. S. presidency.

One Person-One Vote

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — Proponents of the bill to reapportion state legislatures aver that every American should be satisfied with, "one person-one vote." Yet we have a situation where it's "one person-one vote" — and only one person is really satisfied with it.

The rest of us wallow in varying agonies of suspense over which way the one person will go for vice president.

If "one person-one vote" is the ideal way to restrain the hicks in their age-old game of making suckers of us city slickers, why isn't it the ideal way to pick a candidate for vice president? Just because the rubes aren't satisfied with "one person-one vote" is no reason why President Lyndon B. Johnson shouldn't be.

If the hayseed - dominated states aren't careful they're going to find themselves accused of trying to infringe upon federal rights.

This might result in a federal party that would do battle against dixiecrat encroachment. The next thing anyone knew there would be a movement to reapportion Pierre Salinger.

In any reapportionment of Senator Salinger, so he would not outweigh other senators 46 to 1, the reapportioners would be under a supreme court dictum to proceed with all deliberate speed. This of course, is the antithesis of the movement headed by Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen to reapportion state legislatures with all deliberate sloth.

Republican Leader Dirksen, oddly aided and abetted by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, wants a slow down that would put off reapportionment for four years or more. Rural legislators in the states are willing to be even more generous in extending the time. They would permit reapportionment to be put off forever.

Many of the state legislatures are described by reapportionment aficionados as "scandalously unrepresentative," but this does not disturb the rustics to any noticeable extent. They are not averse to a scandal from which they profit.

It has long been an American folk myth that city dwellers are sharpies, and country dwellers are easy marks. How that myth is perpetuated is one of our great national mysteries, only slightly less baffling than the annual resurgence of the myth that baseball is our national sport, and that anyone who suggests it is a business is not only un-American, but un-CBS.

Hayshakers have always made chumps of us pounders of the hot sidewalks while conning us into the delusion that we are too clever for them. As legislators they are especially machiavellian. They can make the vote of the hired man count for more than those of the president and all the faculty of our largest urban institution of learning, including the dean of political science.

They even lure our greatest financial wizards into buying rundown farms at scandalous prices to "take a tax loss." The poor city slicker usually doesn't take a tax loss; just a shirt loss.

Our super-market yokels never had to writhe on tenterhooks like the dozens of aspirants for the Democratic vice presidential nomination because they were chained to the spikes by a tradition of "one person-one vote." Never of their own volition would they have submitted to anything as uncountrified.

When the canny bumpkin legislators go to the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City next week — having crowded out thousands of urbanites for the coveted positions of delegates and alternates — they can shake their straw hats at the suspense tortured vice presidential hopefuls and jeer:

"Yah! Yah! See what happens when it's 'one person-one vote!' "

Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton

The five-cent value honoring the Mayo Brothers will have first day sale at Rochester, Minn., September 11. The following issue will be an eight-cent air mail value to honor Dr. Robert H. Goddard and will be released at Roswell, New Mexico October 5.

The United Nations next set will be a five and eleven-cent value for the Control of Narcotics, and will have first day sale September 21.

The design, by Kurt Plowitz of the United States, will show three hands reaching towards an opium poppy, but blocked by a barrier entitled "Control Narcotics."

International efforts for control of narcotics date back to the founding of the Shanghai Opium Commission of 1909 and adoption of the Hague Convention of 1912, the first multilateral drug treaty which sought to limit the use of manufactured narcotics to medical and other legitimate purposes.

Later the League of Nations adopted additional treaties and set up machinery to carry out their provisions.

In 1946 the United Nations took over the responsibility for the international narcotics control.

A United Nations conference in 1961 adopted a new treaty known as the single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, designed to combine the provisions of several existing treaties and to simplify international control machinery. The convention needs fourty ratifications to enter into force; so far thirty-two have been received at United Nations Headquarters.

The Monroe Stamp Club holds summer trading sessions Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. The first regular meeting will be Sept. 16 at which time the new president, Chester Van Why, will take office.

The regular meeting will be the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 8 p.m.

Johnson's Strength

By Roscoe Drummond

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is coming to the starting line of the campaign with ascending strength.

That's the way it is working out — partly by his own doing and partly by the breaks which have recently come his way.

In recent days nearly everything has been going right for the White House and, as Mr. Johnson prepares to take the center of the political stage in Atlantic City, he will have more than oratory on his side. He will have a whole sequence of events which, in part, explains why the first public opinion poll since the Republican Convention shows the President with a long lead over Sen. Goldwater. As of now LBJ is running true to form. That is, despite the crescendo of convention and post-convention publicity for Mr. Goldwater, despite all the talk of "white backlash" in the North and declining popularity in the South, Mr. Johnson is not only out ahead but formidably in the lead.

The latest events, which cannot fail to strengthen the President's hand further in the coming campaigns, are these:

THE STATE OF THE WORLD — The White House showed both toughness and prudence in dealing with the North Vietnamese attacks on U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin. We acted decisively but not recklessly. The end is not yet clear, but the world is better off because the U.S. acted decisively.

THE STATE OF CONGRESS — This Congress is proving more responsive to White House leadership than any Democratic Congress has been toward any Democratic President since FDR's first term. The latest is Senate and House approval of the "war on poverty" program, which Mr. Johnson views as the capstone of his party's 1964 Congressional record. With it he gets another campaign issue since the Republicans voted overwhelmingly against the bill.

THE STATE OF THE ECONOMY — Unemployment has dropped below 5 per cent for the first time since February, 1960, and employment has reached an all-time high of 72,400,000. The economy has been vigorous and steady, without any serious dip into recession, for a longer period than the nation has experienced in several decades. The outlook is good for some time ahead. Many economists see the decline in unemployment as one of the results from last winter's tax cut.

THE STATE OF OUTER SPACE — The faultless 68-hour voyage of Ranger 7, transmitting to the earth 4,316 photographs during the last 16 minutes before it landed on the moon, gives a new lift to the space program. NASA is no more a partisan matter than the Pentagon, but Mr. Johnson has been the foremost advocate of keeping ahead of the Soviets in space exploration and the feat of Ranger 7, after many failures, is a boon.

THE STATE OF OPINION—The first nationwide Gallup Poll since the Republican Convention does not show the upsurge of political strength which many have thought was being attracted to Sen. Goldwater. Despite finding Mr. Goldwater leading, 51 to 40 per cent (9 per cent undecided) in the South, Gallup reports the President substantially ahead in every other section of the country. Even counting in his present lag in the South, Mr. Johnson's nationwide lead in popular vote is 59 to 31 per cent (10 per cent undecided). Assuming the undecided divide about evenly, this gives Johnson 64 per cent of the vote, Goldwater 36 per cent.

Improbable, yes. No winner has come near to 64 per cent in this century. This lead can hardly be expected to hold. But at this stage the President has no reason to feel that things are running against him. Quite the contrary.

Price To Bolt GOP?

Chesty coughed as he dragged on a cigarette, "You know what, Clark," he sputtered, "There's a lot of underground rumbling going around about politics in Monroe County."

Our ears strained their lobes and we inquired, "What do you mean? Give us the lowdown, will you?"

Chesty, always one to call a spade a spade, came forth with a shocker. "Did you know that John Price, Monroe County commisioner, is going to turn Democrat?"

With that remark our lobes flapped. Didn't Price lead the Republican Party's vote-getters in last November's general election? Wasn't he called "The new GOP stand-bearer in Monroe County" before he took office in January?

Yes. But a lot of water went over the dam since then.

Chesty knew he had us puzzled. "Why? you ask," he read our mind.

"Well, Clark, things haven't being going so well for John since he took office. Price hasn't been getting anywhere in GOP politics even though he polled the largest amount of votes the last time out.

"Actually it was the Young GOP flavor that got John in disfavor with Harold. However, the Young GOP are not thinking of revolting to the Democrats," Chesty gestured with his lit cigarette.

"What's going to happen to the commissioners setup?" we inquired.

"Oh that's as plain as the nose on your face. Price will join ranks with Stuart Pipher, a Democrat, classified the minority member, and give Stanley Rader the so-called minority label."

As an afterthought Chesty said, "There's more going on at the commissioners session than that which meets the eye. Those closed door parleys and cutback meeting edicts were not regulations made just to pass the time of the day."

Chesty sees an interesting general election coming up. He foresees Price not registering as a Democrat until after the election—but working for the Demos in the fall runoff.

An added bombshell also was dropped by Monroe County's most informed citizen. As he left, "Rader, a Republican, will push for the election of Van D. Yetter in the fall," he winked.

"What's going on, we asked."

Chesty chuckled, "Something that Harold Kresge can't cure."

McNamara's Claims

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — There is a hollow ring of political hokum to Defense Secretary McNamara's huffy claim that U.S. strategic nuclear strike capability is increasing.

The real fact is that the exact opposite is true.

A detailed study reveals clearly that since McNamara became civilian head of the Pentagon in 1961, this country's all-important nuclear weapons stockpile has steadily decreased in megatonage every year. (A nuclear megaton is equivalent to one million tons of TNT.)

This dire conclusion is based squarely on McNamara's own statements — while testifying on the military budget before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

These voluminous published hearings — from which all classified figures and other sensitive information were meticulously deleted by McNamara's own censors — disclose this jarring over-all finding:

Under policies initiated and forcefully pursued by McNamara, with the full knowledge and approval of the late President Kennedy and President Johnson, the deliverable strategic nuclear megatonage of the U.S., which in 1961 exceeded 36,000 megatons, is declining to the extent that by early 1970 the total will have sunk to around 5,250 megatons.

Secretary McNamara bases his testy denial that the megatonage of the U.S. nuclear weapons stockpile is shrinking on a "forces on alert" contention — a distinctly indefinable and misleading status.

In 1961 there were no bombers on "airborne alert." That was done later. Further, the definition of "alert" status has been changed by McNamara to include all bombers on 15 minutes' notice, and in some of his statements to apparently include other bombers.

Also, the voluble Pentagon ruler considers all missiles as "alert forces" — thus enabling him, by combining bombers and missiles, to claim a much larger "forces on alert."

But "alert" status can be misleading as it can be varied from zero to total within minutes as the situation requires.

Real test of capabilities is total strategic power measured in megatonage.

On that, McNamara's claims don't stand up on the basis of the contradictory testimony in the published hearings of the Senate Armed Services Committee, headed by Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga.

Detailed Explanation — In the fiscal 1964 published hearings, Secretary McNamara is recorded as testifying (P. 48) that of the 1080 intercontinental bombers, one-half were on "alert."

Of these bombers, 80 are B-58s, the last of which were delivered in 1962. The life of these bombers is less than 10 years, and attrition already is making itself felt. (P. 64 SASC hearings fiscal 1964.) Attrition will mean the exhaustion of these bombers on or before 1972, even if they aren't phased out by then.

Another 400 of the intercontinental bombers are B-47s. All of them will be completely phased out by the end of fiscal 1966. (P. 47 SASC hearings fiscal 1964.)

The remaining 600 bombers are B-52s. Deliveries began in 1958 and the last were delivered in 1963. (P. 48 SASC hearings fiscal 1964.) The operational life of these bombers is estimated as between 10 and 15 years. Regardless of attrition, B-52s are programmed only through fiscal 1969. (P. 33 SASC hearings fiscal 1965.)

By 1974, one-half of these bombers will have been operational more than their maximum life. All will be older than 10 years. Based on attrition estimates, less than 150 will be usable, even if retained in inventory.

No new bombers are scheduled. The B-70 is under development, but a "no production" decision has been made on this giant intercontinental bomber. (P. 42-43 SASC hearings fiscal 1964).

Thus, the conclusion is inescapable that even if efforts are made to keep the B-52s in inventory in the 1970s, deliverable power by strategic forces will have plummeted from 36,080 megatons in 1961 to 5,256 in the 1970s — less than one-sixth the power.

And that's an optimistic estimate because the probability is very strong no B-52s will be in the operational inventory due to one or a combination of three factors: (1) Complete attrition; (2) high cost of "alert" status for over-age aircraft; (3) McNamara's belief that manned bombers will not be needed as targets can be hit more effectively and cheaper by missiles. (P. 42-43 SASC hearings fiscal 1964.)

Dear Abby

Actions Not Commendable

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: An extremely attractive woman and I have been seeing each other exclusively for the past year.

I am in my early 40s and she is in her early 30's. She has recently begun to pressure me for a marriage date. She told me that she was a widow, but I learned quite accidentally that she has had three husbands.

Her first she divorced, her second died, and her third she also divorced. When I confronted her with these facts, she readily admitted they were true.

When I asked her why she didn't volunteer the truth about herself in the first place, she said she had been "counseled" not to.

What kind of a "counselor" would advise a woman to withhold such pertinent information from the man she intended to marry?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: One without integrity, obviously. But it's the WOMAN you are interested in, not the counselor. And any woman who would accept the counsel of deception is no better than her counselor. What else do you want to know?

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-year-old daughter who rushes outside when she hears someone honk a horn.

I tell her it is not right, that if a boy wants to see her, he should come to the door.

She says I am old-fashioned, and that if she had a date with a boy then she would expect him to come to the door.

But if he just happens to be driving by and wants to see if she's home, there is nothing wrong with honking his horn.

All this horn honking and her running outside is getting to be too much for me. Maybe if you told her, Abby, she would listen. Or am I old-fashioned?

GIVE UP

DEAR GIVE: You are not old-fashioned. A boy who respects a girl will not "honk" his horn outside her home. And any girl who runs outside at the sound of a "honk" is a silly goose.

DEAR ABBY: So many of our friends and relatives have been dying off lately, my husband and I decided to go over our wills.

They originally stated that our estates would be divided among our children, and they would all share and share alike.

We have changed them. Our eldest daughter has given us more attention and respect than any of the others. We also have a son who has never gone out of his way to show us any consideration.

They will all get what we think they deserve. Nuts to this share and share alike business.

MATER AND PATER

CONFIDENTIAL TO DANNY: "If you cannot inspire a woman with love of yourself, fill her above the brim with love of herself; all that runs over will be yours." These are the words of C. C. COLTON, an English clergyman (1780-1832), and times have not changed very much.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctor, I'd Like To Know

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My daughter is always getting black and blue marks which turn red and yellow as time goes on. She has also been running a constant fever. What can you tell me about this? We are very worried.

Mrs. F. P. L., North Dakota

Dear Mrs. L.: The most important thing you can be told is that your daughter should have been examined by a physician a long time ago. It is almost inconceivable that you should completely neglect a problem that has concerned you for so long.

The exact cause of such a condition can only be determined by direct physical examination and complete studies of the blood.

Different Causes

A black and blue mark is an evidence of some kind of hemorrhage beneath the skin. There are many different causes of such hemorrhages. In most instances black and blue marks are of no major medical significance. They commonly result from simple bruises or other minor injuries. But when these marks consistently appear with no apparent cause, they should be investigated.

The fact that your daughter has been running a constant fever emphasizes the urgent need for a thorough study of her condition.

Relying on newspaper columns for medical information is never a substitute for the important and vital relationship between you and your physician. Whenever I get sick and call my doctor, he always prefers to see me in his office instead of coming to my home. Is this because he is lazy or too busy, or can there be some other reason?

Mr. J. C., Rhode Island

Dear Mr. C.: There most certainly is another reason — and a very good one.

Your doctor prefers to examine you in his office for your benefit, and not for his own convenience.

Limited Facilities

The familiar "little black bag" which a doctor carries with him on house calls has a limited capacity. Obviously he can take along only the bare essentials for a superficial examination.

By seeing you in his office, your doctor is able to give you the full benefit of his skill. There he has complete facilities and specialized equipment to give you the advantage of a thorough examination.

Of course your doctor will unhesitatingly come to your home whenever it is necessary.

Basis For Decision

His decision to see you in your home or at his office is not made to suit his personal convenience or comfort.

It is based on his critical judgment of how he can best serve your medical needs in a given situation.

While Dr. Coleman cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Hypocrite

The ancients noted that a person might exhibit the characteristics of an animal. For instance, a person might be described "like a lion" or "like a jackal." Eventually the description was shortened and the person being described was called a "lion" or a "jackal." The word "hypocrite" took this course.

The Greeks called an actor "hypokrites." They noticed that in everyday life some persons pretended to be what they were not. Such a person was said to be like an actor playing a part on the stage. The next step was to call such a person an actor or "hypokrites," the forerunner of the English word "hypocrite."

Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Maybe it would break the drought if we'd talk about the fact that few organizations have had a chance to use those "rain dates", they are so careful to plan for outdoor events. The familiar "Chance of scattered showers" hasn't materialized, either, unless you count the ten-minute shower that rained out the concert or the few sprinkles that spotted the guitar and records which had been left out all night but didn't even wet down the dust on the river road.

However, when the clouds roll up just before supper time, it does cause a certain amount of uncertainty in our household which has now grown to six adults, three children, and two dogs. That makes quite a hullaballo eating indoors.

So while the corn water is coming to a boil we sit around, clutching the tableware we're responsible for, waiting for the weather to make up its mind. The talk turned to the caption for those trousseau garters Barbara Anton had designed for the Pakistan Pavilion.

They were pictured upside down, but one wit suggested that was because the compositor had been confused by the caption involving a small diamond in the cupid's "umbilical terminus." Since in the course of our cross-word-puzzling, we'd come upon two other unfamiliar words "leistered" and "exiguous" we finally came up with a sentence for a campaign speech, which we'll contribute free to either political party!

"Although our chances are exiguous, we must try to leister the opposition right in the umbilical terminus". At that, it makes as much sense as some of their other utterances.

Bad News: Allowance Cut! On Daily Calories, That Is

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — I have bad news today; we Americans are too fat. The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences which is the Supreme Court of the nutrition world has recently published the recommended dietary allowance for the year of 1964.

Although there are many recommended changes, the most outstanding is the reduction in calories. In plain words, people are getting too fat. We're working less, have more leisure time, and are eating more. The Board suggests a reduction of 300 calories for an active man, and 200 calorie reduction for the active woman.

In Sunday's paper I was reading an article about life in the year 2014. One of the forecasts was that gadgetry will replace many tedious homemaking jobs. You will be able to order breakfast the night before by pushing a button and setting the time for the specified hour you want it ready in the morning. You will also be able to push a button to order your dinner; it will be processed from freezer to oven. And by that time you will also be able to have a robot that will do light housework; general pick-up of the home and running of various appliances.

Notice that I said "you" — I don't expect to be around then! But if we supposedly have it easy today and are getting too fat, what about the housewife of the year 2014? Well, let's let her worry about her buttons, and we'll concentrate on reducing our daily caloric intake.

It's easy to do in August with the abundance of low-calorie fresh fruits and vegetables available. The canteloupe pictured above, for example. So tasty and yet one half of a melon yields only 37 calories! And you don't even have to add sugar to enjoy the flavor. What's more it combines nicely with other fruits and even cottage cheese, another low calorie food. Wouldn't this taste good for lunch or even for supper on a hot night — if the weather ever changes.

Cottage Cheese-Cantaloupe Salad

3 ripe fresh cantaloupes
Head lettuce or romaine
2 cups (1 lb.) creamy cottage cheese
3 tablespoons finely chopped fresh mint leaves
Fresh blueberries or seedless grapes
Mayonnaise, optional

For each serving, use ½ cantaloupe. Wash and cut in crosswise halves. Remove seeds and stringy portion. From cantaloupe halves, cut balls with a melon ball cutter or the ½ teaspoon measurer. Line salad plates or small bowls with lettuce or Romaine over which arrange cantaloupe balls. Combine cottage cheese and mint and place a mound in the center of each salad. Surround with cantaloupe balls and fresh blueberries or seedless grapes. Serve with or without mayonnaise. Yields 6 servings.

This next recipe makes a delightful summer salad. The fresh lime juice and gingerale give it a zing; even your family will like this — mine did!

Molded Cantaloupe Gingerale Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup water
½ cup hot water
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
¼ cup sugar
1 cup gingerale
2 cups diced fresh cantaloupe or cantaloupe balls
1 cup seedless grapes
cantaloupe balls
clusters of seedless grapes

Soften gelatine in water. Add hot water and stir until gelatine has dissolved. Add next 3 ingredients. Chill over ice water until the mixture begins to thicken. Fold in cantaloupe and grapes. Turn into a lightly oiled 1½ quart mold. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Just before serving, turn out onto a serving plate. Garnish with cantaloupe balls and clusters of Thompson seedless grapes. Yields 6 servings.

Don't you love snow pudding? Especially with custard sauce—it's yummy, but low in calories. Make it with diced cantaloupe next time; it's good.

Cantaloupe Snow Pudding

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup water
1 cup hot water
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 large egg white
dash salt
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2 cups finely diced ripe cantaloupe

Soften gelatine in the ¼ cup water. Add hot water and stir until gelatine has melted. Add sugar and lemon juice and chill over ice water until the mixture begins to thicken. Add egg white, salt and pure vanilla extract. Beat with an electric or rotary beater until the mixture is fluffy. Fold in cantaloupe. Chill until ready to serve. Serve in tall sherbet glasses with or without Custard Sauce and whipped cream.

Custard Sauce

¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 large eggs
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel

Combine sugar and salt in a 1 quart saucepan or in the top of a double boiler. Beat in eggs and ¼ cup of the milk. Heat the remaining milk and add to mixture. Stir and cook over low heat or hot water until the custard coats metal spoon. Remove from heat and stir in pure vanilla extract and lemon peel. Cool and chill. Yields 8 servings.

Mrs. Englehardt, whose home is Studio Glenwood on Strawberry Hill, will paint a landscape in oil, explaining as she paints the ideas, techniques and effects she is creating on canvas.

Of particular interest is the fact that the finished painting will become the property of the Barrett Library and if there are enough interested persons can be purchased following her lecture. The proceeds from the painting, if sold, will be used to purchase new books for the library.

The lecture is open to the public with no admission being charged.

Tea will be served following the lecture.

The library is continuing its showing of the work of local artists. Beginning today and continuing for two weeks, oil paintings of Pocono scenes by C. I. Dreisbach will be on display during library hours, the library board announced.

Mrs. John Roberts, librarian, announced the library hours: Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.; Saturdays from 10 to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p. m. The evening hours on Wednesday from 7 to 9 are also being continued because of popular request.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

OPEN EARS—OPEN EYES

Anna Haller of our International Gift Center tells me that more than 125 mirrors were sold at our special gee-WHIZZER price last weekend. Just think of that! —125 women with no excuse now for their slips to hang or their stocking seams to be crooked; 125 men, perhaps, with no reason on earth to have ties that clash with socks. And think of the fun the children in some of those 125 households will have, admiring themselves, mugging, and making believe they really do look like their favorite movie stars.

Doris Hinton tells me the newest thing for the college crowd is the jeweled heraldic emblem. These are perfect for pinning onto the blazer or suit coat, and while there are some of antique gold-tone without gems, most of them are lavish with mock rubies, sapphires, and the like. The price is 3.00.

Doris tells me the heraldic emblem is such a rage this year, it is even reflected in the pins that encase Swiss embroidery. The embroidered design is in dark colors, and there are eagles, fleur de lis, and such at just 1.00.

Another new trinket to delight women of all ages who accessorize with scarfs is the very handsome scarf "pin-clip," retailing at 2.00. By D'Arlan, these are very impressive. Some are gem set; some are tailored, with varied designs: armour, perhaps, or cupids. And some have gem-set drops. Worn either as a pin or a clip, these are lovely both to own and to give.

Another new arrival in our Jewelry Department is the locket that holds either two or four pictures. Some are attached to a chain; some swing from a bow pin. All are 2.00. An interesting way to carry the pictures of those you love . . . a delightful way to catch the photographic overflow from your wallet.

And speaking of wallets!—for the Back to School miss our Handbag Department offers a five-piece purse set at only 1.98, which promises to be popular. In mock alligator or calf in red, black, camel or bone, the set consists of an attache case, dandy for carrying school papers, and, tucked inside, a coin purse, tissue case, cigarette case, and zippered cosmetic case. Now, what kind of a case do you make of all that? A good case for being well-organized and well-matched, wouldn't you say?

Here's another fad to interest Back to Schoolers . . . the colorful, patterned sock and stocking. We have some beauties of Helanca stretch that come over the knee, and others that end just short of the knee. The designs are gay . . . young . . . delightful, and sizes go from 9½ to 11. The over-the-knee sock is priced from 2.00 to 3.00; the shorter sock from 1.50 to 3.50.

Mothers, don't think your teen-ager is knee-dling you if she begs for these. All her friends will be wearing them, and you do want her to be one of the happy crowd, don't you?

If you are Fall-fashion-minded be sure to see our Wyckoff Fashion Show tomorrow evening at Pocono Jointure School. The school is beautiful . . . the models are beautiful . . . the fashions are fashion-ating!

Wondering what to buy for your Fall wardrobe? Wondering how to outfit your children in smart, practical, hard-wearing, style setting Back to School clothes? See our Wyckoff fashion show Thursday night at Pocono Mountain Jointure. The public is invited. Tickets at the door!

Opening Night At Cherry Lane Playhouse

'Threepenny Opera' Draws Critic's Raves

by Charles McNett
Record Reporter

TANNERSVILLE — Many wondered how Cherry Lane Playhouse could follow its tremendously successful production of "My Fair Lady", the record-run Broadway hit.

The theater's solution was to use "Threepenny Opera" by Kurt Weill, the show that ran longer in New York, although off-Broadway, then "My Fair Lady."

The selection proved to be an imaginative and excellent choice. The ballad opera with book by German poet Berthold Brecht is a perfect foil to the sweetness and light of "Fair Lady," and the Cherry Lane Company performs it well.

If the theme of "My Fair Lady," set in the same city at approximately the same time, may be said to be, "Anyone who is poor may become rich and happy," the message of "Threepenny Opera" is altogether different.

Historical Perspective

It should be seen in historical perspective. First performed in Berlin in 1928, "Threepenny Opera" is a satirical look at the London of the time of Queen Victoria. Other musicals of the era were the pap of the expiring operetta, or the corn of Broadway.

Weill and Brecht took John Gay's "Beggar's Opera" and turned it into a biting satire of the pre-Hitlerian Germany. Its humor is not of the bellylaugh variety. Rather it's laugh-with-a - sob - while - you - -stick - a-knife-into-injustice.

Adolph Hitler never was known for a sense of humor, with the result that Weill's works were banned in Germany in 1933—despite the 2,000 performances of the hit "Threepenny Opera." Weills and Brecht escaped to England, and the former came to the United States. He died here in 1950.

Even today the unprepared are liable to find the play "advanced" in spite of its 1928 date. It's earthy, mean, and realistic, with a score that owes a debt to both jazz and Hindemith. Credit must go to pianists Joan Dorneman and Eva Hess for keeping up with the dissonances and unusual rhythms of the music. Diane Burti provides a swinging guitar background for the theme, "The Ballad of Mack the Knife."

There are no stars in the show, only victims. Herb Surface, who did a fine job directing, plays Mack the Knife. He turns in a shocking portrayal of a man struggling against fate, much in the tradition of Greek tragedy.

Probably the next most important character is Mr. Peachum, played by Sam Carter. He sums up the hypocrisy of the 'little man', "The world is so wicked you have to keep running so the legs don't get stolen out from under you."

Leader of a rag-tag and bobble tail "army" of 432 beggars, Peachum is known as the Beggar's Big Brother. He rents costumes to make them look even more miserable — then skims off the increase in donations for himself.

Peachum is overcome that his daughter, Polly, has married Mack the Knife, leader of a gang which commits every crime in the book.

Barbara Cole plays Polly with an innocence and sweetness that makes Colly Cibber's Pamela look like a tarnished hussy. But when Mack goes to jail, betrayed by a former girl-friend and brothel inmate at Peachum's instigation, she takes over "the business" with complete aplomb.

Dorothy Moore turns in her best acting performance of the year as Polly's alcoholic crone of a mother, as does Joan Kenley in her role of Lucy, another prostitute whom Mack married.

Carol Cartwright plays Jenny, Mack's Delilah, in a recreation of the role performed by Lotte Lenya, Weill's wife, in Germany and New York. She's a dead ringer for Miss Lenya.

Perfect Street Singer

James Cook is perfect as the street singer-cum narrator of the "Threepenny Opera" — so called, he tells us, because beggars can not afford to pay more.

Make-up for the show is superb, the cast looks like death warmed over.

Perhaps the "feel" of the performance is best seen in the climax. A tense scene leads up to the inevitable hanging of Mack. As the noose is lowered, Peachum blithely steps forward and announces that since operas cannot end unhappily, the cast has arranged a reprieve.

Ronn Forella appears, looking for all the world like a toy soldier, complete with hobby horse, and announces the Queen has pardoned Mack, given him a castle in Sussex, and an annuity!

What an ironic twist on Moliere.

If you are not scared of the really real, dressed up in a surrealistic package, be sure and see "Threepenny Opera." Perhaps you will learn why some segments of society "first feed the face, then talk right and wrong."

Police Funds To Split $14,214

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Police pension funds of five Monroe County municipalities are scheduled to split a $14,214.34 refund mellon from Pennsylvania's two per cent state tax on out-of-state casualty insurance premiums covering the year 1963.

State auditor General Thomas Z. Minehart whose department is processing the funds, said the payments are made on the basis of formulas established by an act of the 1951 Legislature and are based on both population and the number of policemen in service.

Monroe County police pension funds and the amount each will receive are:

Delaware Water Gap, $404.63; East Stroudsburg, $5,289.70; Mt. Pocono, $645.85; Stroudsburg, $4,368.47; Stroud Township, $3,505.69.

Pen Argyl Fire Extinguished

PEN ARGYL — A frame garage and a car at 106 Pennsylvania Ave. in Pen Argyl, were damaged extensively by fire Friday night. The blaze scorched the exterior of an adjoining furniture warehouse.

Members of the Lookout Volunteer Fire Co. answered the alarm at 8 p.m. Assistant Fire Chief Walton Sadler estimated damage to the garage, owned by Mrs. William Cowling of 106 Pennsylvania Ave., and the car, owned by Mrs. Edna Ritter of 106½ Pennsylvania Ave., at $1,000 each.

Sadler said bystanders helped lay 1,200 feet of hose needed to extinguish the flames.

Upper River 60 Per Cent Of Capacity

PHILADELPHIA — United States Department of the Interior water quality survey of the Delaware River for July was released recently.

The report showed that rainfall on the upper reaches of the Delaware was only about one-half of normal during the month. Result was that mean flow at Montague, N.J., was 1,719 cubic feet per second, only 77 per cent of the usual flow for July.

The survey said that about 35 per cent of the flow was released from surface storage reservoirs. In addition, it continued, water storage stood at only 66 per cent of capacity.

Dissolved oxygen contained in the water was about the same as for other July readings, the report said.

Portland Gets School Tax Bills

PORTLAND — School tax bills for the Bangor Area School system, Portland borough, have been mailed by the local tax collector.

Real estate mills total 22 in 1964, compared with 24 in 1963. The per capita tax of $15 remains the same, as does the one per cent wage tax.

August and September there will be a two per cent discount on both taxes; October and November will see the bills at face value, and there will be a five per cent penalty after Dec. 1.

Ragweed Pollen Sampling To Be Taken At Swiftwater

HARRISBURG — Swiftwater is one of 30 communities which have been designated by the Pennsylvania Department of Health as locations for its 1964 ragweed pollen sampling program.

Daily pollen samples will be collected in Swiftwater at National Drug Co. Laboratory under the direction of Dr. A. E. Bolyn. Sampling locations are on the roofs of buildings.

Results of last year's pollen sampling program show that Swiftwater had a ragweed pollen index of 16. State authorities consider any community with an index of over 10 to be in need of a ragweed control program.

The ragweed pollen sampling program, now in its fourth year, is conducted by the Division of Air Pollution Control of the State Department of Health from August 1 to September 30, the hay fever season.

The purpose of the sampling is to locate relatively pollen free areas and areas where ragweed control measures may be necessary.

Information obtained in this survey is also used to assist tourists, vacationers and residents who suffer from hay fever in deciding where to go in Pennsylvania to minimize discomfort.

More than a half million persons suffer from hay fever, caused mostly by the obnoxious ragweed. The weed flowers emits its pollen into the air during August and September.

All oasis in the Sahara Desert have water in common. Some are supplied by natural springs, but often the water has seeped great distances through porous rocks or sand.

Cy Barrett Says

Home Study Money

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

My twin sister works for a company which pays the entire cost of correspondence courses for its employees. She is working hard on one now, and says, "If I get a top grade, they will promote me." I'd like to suggest this program to my employer. Is this being done much by companies?

MISS TWIN

DEAR MISS TWIN:

Although half of U.S. industries aid employees in home study tuition payment, there are few identical plans. They do agree, however, that the employee should pay the cost of the course and finish it before reimbursement.

Known as Employees Assistance Plans, Educational Aid Plans, or Educational Refund Programs, the amount of repayment ranges from 50 to 100 per cent. While some companies use home study as a lure toward advancement, others make it crystal clear there's no bait on the finish-before-repayment hook.

P.S. In the last 75 years, 27 million Americans have been trained by home study.

CY

DEAR CY:

I am seriously considering paying about $70 for an export-import home study course. According to the brochure, some of their students have had fabulous successes, reaping tremendous profits.

I understand in 1964 total imports were about $5 billion annually while exports were $10 billion. Today we import $17 billion and export $24 billion. Just a little bit of that volume could make me rich. Should I send in money for this export-import course?

JAMESON

DEAR JAMESON:

Export-import is a glamorous, highly complex business usually learned through the pocketbook. Some universities and colleges offer excellent courses in this field, but I question home study. I have seen alluring case histories of export-import correspondence students, such as you mention.

In practically every case, the gains alluded to were in single deals. No mention was made of any long run profits . . . or losses. I suggest you learn this business by working for an importer or exporter. Or . . . get a knowledgeable partner.

Otherwise stay out of export-import. A novice can find plenty of opportunities on the local scene without having to go abroad and search for trouble.

CY

DEAR CY:

My husband, who is in his late 30s, has been a minister for 15 years. He is thinking of going into a competitive business of his own, however, and I don't think he would be happy after so many years of helping people.

He is warm, attractive, and generous. It would seem there should be jobs where he could increase his earnings but continue warm human contacts.

MRS. D.

DEAR MRS. D.:

Business is helping others through supplying goods and services. The common misconception that business must be vicious and slashing is pure Hollywood. Sure, business competition is tough . . . but so is Satan.

Panama Canal Treaty Third Revision Expected

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — "I took the canal and let Congress debate," President Theodore Roosevelt once declared, "and while the debate goes on, the canal does also."

The idea of constructing a ship canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans had occurred to navigators as soon as the form of the continents of North and South America was definitely known. As early as 1527 H. de la Serna surveyed an interoceanic canal route across Panama.

A French company, headed by Ferdinand de Lesseps, engineer of the Suez Canal, was organized to build such a canal but went bankrupt after putting nearly $300 million and six years of effort into the project. A new French company took up the task, but by 1898 it was ready to sell the works already constructed along with its concession from Columbia.

The United States negotiated with both Colombia, of which Panama was then a part, and Nicaragua. A 1903 treaty with Colombia granted this country control over a strip across the isthmus six miles wide and exclusive rights to construct a canal. But when Colombia raised its money demands, an independence movement within Panama offered an alternative.

With the aid of $100,000 from the French company, a revolt was arranged for Nov. 3, 1903. President Roosevelt, alerted to the imminence of that effort, has already ordered the Navy to hold warships within striking distance of the isthmus to "maintain free and uninterrupted transit" as allowed by an earlier treaty with Colombia. Colombian troops were prevented from landing and the revolt was successful.

The United States accorded the new government of Panama de facto recognition on Nov. 7, 1903. Eleven days later the Hay-Bunau-Varilla Treaty, similar to the treaty with Colombia but more favorable to the United States, was signed.

The United States received "in perpetuity the use, occupation, and control of a zone of land and land under water for the construction, maintenance, operation, sanitation and protection of said canal of the width of 10 miles" from the Caribbean to the Pacific.

The United States was assigned all rights, power, and authority that it would "possess and exercise if it were the sovereign of the territory." This quasi-sovereignty has since been the source of angry disputation.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, August 19, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Take a hint if it is a good one. Wise words come from thinking minds, so go in that direction to find them.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — You may feel "between the devil and the deep blue sea," as the old saying goes, but this only if NOT using all your faculties and knowhow.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — A day that calls for serious thought (but not taking yourself too seriously). Living up to your big ideals and following wise procedures, you can put yourself in line for real gains.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Emotions could get out of hand unless you are determined to keep them under control. Lack of self-mastery could hinder your own ends.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Regular matters and new tasks may both bring problems, but they can be straightened out with patience and sufficient care to avoid errors. Back intuition with more knowledge.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — It will be well to handle all matters discreetly now, slowing down where a tendency to hurry exists, and not provoking useless argument.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Don't let your zeal wither just because you may be faced with difficulties. Study problems carefully with your innate common sense and good judgment, and you should solve all.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your personality, if at its highest level, could win many friends now. Put forth your best efforts, support worthy causes, and insist upon integrity of method.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Get the other fellow's point of view BEFORE determining yours to be better informed. Jupiter stimulates high-powered action.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Your aspects more favorable than the majority now but, by the same token, you will be seeking, mixing with, others who don't feel up to par. So stress calmness and mastery of self.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — It will be important now to maintain balance and peak up your attitude and possibly your schedule. Seven cars lined to your good advice.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Business affairs and employment matters seem to work out well. Emotionally inspiration may be experienced, and a manner of speech with continued serenity is used.

YOU BORN TODAY are an individual of special energies; see no reason to be inhibited. Insights are yours. Your vision is good. Use it to reach your goals. Don't let others stifle you. Be ANYONE YOU SEE FIT TO BE. Birthdate of Orville Wright, pioneer airplane [illegible]

'A Thousand Clowns' Next Pocono Playhouse Show

MOUNTAINHOME — "A Thousand Clowns" starring Darren McGavin will take the spotlight next week at the Pocono Playhouse.

McGavin, known to millions as "Mike Hammer" and to a equal number as the valiant Captain of the riverboat 'Enterprise', comes to the Playhouse directly from a highly successful run in "The King and I".

He co-starred in this revival of the Rodgers-Hammerstein classic with Rise Stevens at the Musical Theater of Lincoln Center, New York City.

Versatile McGavin made his Broadway debut as 'Happy', Willie Loman's youngest son in "Death of a Salesman". From that time on he has been active both in Hollywood, on the airwaves and on Broadway.

He shared the applause with Geraldine Page in "The Rainmakers" and added to the delights of "Tunnel of Love" during its two year run on Broadway. Later he was starred in "Blood, Sweat and Stanley Pool". His latest films include "The Man With A Golden Arm" and "The Delicate Delinquent".

In Herb Gardner's hit comedy, McGavin recreates the role played on Broadway by Jason Roberts, Jr., that of a slightly daffy drifter. His one aim in life is to enjoy it. — every morsel of it!

He is the unofficial guardian of his nephew, a knowing youngster with a lot if wisdom in his young head. The story is set in action when the two, who are living in a one room jungle on the upper West side in New York City, are cal' upon by the child welfare authorities.

The purpose of the visit is to determine whether the unemployed uncle is a fit guardian for a minor. The fact that the minor in question is healthy and happy with his unconventional life does not seem to aid matters.

It does, however, make for a hilarious situation. One of the investigators is a pretty young woman. She becomes deeply involved in the case — deep enough to fall in love!

"Patricia Sales"

The young woman who looses her heart to the wrong person at the wrong time and place will be played by Patricia Sales. Others in the cast will include Patrick McVey and Carlton Colyer and McGavin's own son, York in the role of the out-spoken young man around whom much of the plot revolves.

"A Thousand Clowns" which won high praise from the New York press when it opened on Broadway in 1962, was happily named the play "with a thousand laughs".

Mrs. Rowena Stevens will present the play for one week only Aug. 24 through Aug. 29. This production will be followed by the mad-mad farce "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You In the Closet and I'm Feelin' so Sad!" starring Hermione Gingold.

SportScope

by KEN O'BRIEN

Daily Record Sports Editor

Latest shenanigans in the major league baseball world have drawn outcries from sportswriters across the country.

You can't hardly blame them, either.

They're not afraid of the television industry—they're more afraid of losing their jobs.

One of these days—and perhaps not too long from now—there will be a vast shakeup in newspapers. Editors will be forced to switch their TV-radio critics to the sports department. The sportswriters will be switched to the entertainment field. After all, these will be the fields in which these people are more familiar.

Television is still primarily an entertainment medium—not a news medium. And sports executives are rapidly selling out to this entertainment arena.

Blame for this latest episode lies in the laps of Yankee owners Del Webb and Dan Topping, CBS, American League President Joe Cronin and Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick.

The sale of the New York Yankees to the Columbia Broadcasting System has everybody talking—except the news commentators on CBS who obviously aren't allowed to comment.

Sports fans may shun the baseball parks because some wiseacres have suggested that baseball is no longer a sport and any sports fan who goes to a ball park is a fink—like a horse player who rushes from the track to the Metropolitan Opera.

Baseball has escaped more than several Congressional investigations thus far, but more are on the way—or in the lingo of the TV industry: "More to Come."

I asked my lawyer his opinion on the legality of this CBS-Yankee marriage and he told me he's been too involved with divorces lately to give much thought to it.

I asked a Yankee fan what he thought about it and he said it didn't make any difference to him who owned the ball club just so long as they keep Whitey Ford and Mickey Mantle and Bobby Richardson.

"What about Roger Maris?" I asked. "No, I wouldn't really care if HE owned the Yanks, either."

I decided to press the issue. "Would you care, for instance, if Barry Goldwater owned the Yankees?"

"Well," he replied, "I'd rather see him own the Yanks than be President."

There have been a lot of jokes circulating about this strange sale—things like the Yankees might be wearing the CBS "eye" on their shirtsleeves next season, and maybe in a few years CBS will meet NBC in the World Series.

But the jokes will soon fade, I fear, and there will be more Congressional investigations into baseball with perhaps serious repercussions. And the baseball fan will start wondering about this so-called National Pastime. The No. 1 sport in the USA may soon become professional football. Already, you can argue either side of that question with good points on both sides.

Long before CBS purchased 80 per cent of the Yankee stock, baseball has been leaving the fans—roaming away from the "home grounds" of Boston, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia and Washington in search of more lucrative fields. There is talk now of Milwaukee hitting the road to Atlanta. And the Angels are moving to Anaheim, Calif.—a suburb of Disneyland.

Baseball has become a checkerboard square. And perhaps your best bet to follow any further franchise shifts will be to turn your dial to CBS. This type of story, after all, would be right up this network TV's alley. It was, you know, the CBS announcement that the reason for purchasing the Yanks was simply for "diversification." And that's perhaps the funniest joke of all concerning the transaction.

Phillies Seek Site

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies offered to underwrite Tuesday the construction cost of a $13 million 45,000-seat sports stadium in South Philadelphia.

The offer highlighted a City Hall meeting attended by City Council, community leaders and Robert R. M. Carpenter, owner of the baseball Phillies, Jerry Wolman, owner of the football Eagles, and former Mayor Richardson Dilworth.

A statement by the Phillies disclosed that the club has had its own engineers and architects study stadiums that have been built elsewhere in the past eight years.

Seat 60,000

This survey, said the current National League leaders, shows a stadium can be constructed for $13 million, excluding land, and that it can be expanded to seat 60,000 if there is a need.

The Phillies said its team would play at any site which City Council chose and would pay a fair and reasonable rental for its use.

Under the Phillies offer, the team would become the stadium operator and assume all of the risks.

The Phillies proposal came after the collapse of a proposal to build a new stadium above the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at 30th and Arch Streets.

Mets Jolt Bucs

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Christopher slammed two triples, a double and a two run homer pacing the New York Mets to a 7-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Christopher's hitting backed up a nine-hitter by Al Jackson as the Mets won the third straight.

The four hits stretched Christopher's batting streak to 11 straight games. He has hit at least one double in each of his last six games and his 12 total bases for the night eclipsed the club record of 10 formerly held jointly by Duke Snider and Bob Taylor.

Jackson went the route gaining his seventh victory. He gave up two Pittsburgh run in the sixth when Gene Freese tagged a 350-foot homer.

Mexico's Osuna To Defend Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Mexico's Rafael Osuna will defend his men's singles title and Australia's full Davis Cup squad will be in the field of the National Tennis Championships next month, the tournament chairman said Tuesday.

"This should put to rest all those rumors about wholesale withdrawals," added Henry Benisch, who runs the show for the West Side Tennis Club.

A tennis source at the National Doubles Tournament in Chestnut Hill, Mass., reported Monday that Osuna had decided to skip defense of the crown he won a year ago in order to pick up extra money on the lucrative European circuit.

Bypass Nationals

At the same time there were reports that the Australian Davis Cup team, headed by Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle, probably would bypass the Nationals in order to go to Cleveland early and get more practice on the clay courts on which the Challenge Round against the United States will be played Sept. 25-27.

Benisch said both suppositions were without foundation.

"I have a wire from Osuna and he tells me positively he and Antonio Palafox will be here for the tournament," he added.

"Also, I talked to Harry Hopman (Austalian Davis Cup captain) as well as Emerson and Stolle by transatlantic telephone Monday night and they assured me of their intention to play at Forest Hills."

The Australian Davis Cuppers play Sweden in the interzone final at Baastad, Sweden, Aug. 29-31. The Nationals start at the West Side Tennis Club Sept. 3 and extend through Sept. 13.

Birds Bop Bosox; Chi Slaps Yankees

BOSTON (AP) — Norm Siebern and Boog Powell cracked two-run doubles and Robin Roberts and reliever Dick Hall made them stand up as American-League leading Baltimore defeated Boston 5-2 Tuesday night

The victory kept Baltimore's lead at 1½ games over the second-place Chicago White Sox, who defeated New York 4-3 in 10 innings. The third-place Yankees fell four games off the pace.

Roberts surrendered seven hits in six innings but was tough in the clutch. The 37-year-old veteran picked up his 11th victory against five defeats.

Boston center fielder Carl Yastrzemski set up the Orioles' three-run fourth inning when he booted Luis Aparicio's soft single to center. Jackie Brandt, who had singled, hurried to third and Aparicio to second on the bobble.

First Score

Siebern then pumped a ground-rule double into the rightfield corner for Baltimore's first two runs. Brooks Robinson drove in Siebern with a line single off the left field wall.

Batimore scored twice in the sixth on Powell's double. Aparicio reached first when Ed Bressoud bobbled his grounder to deep short. Siebern walked and Powell rifled a double off the right field wall, scoring both runners.

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Hershberger rifled a two-out single to right-center field, scoring Al Weis with the winning run in the 10th inning and giving the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees Tuesday night.

The victory kept the White Sox 1½ games behind first-place Baltimore in the American League pennant race. The third-place Yankees, however, dropped four games back.

Weis led off the inning with a single but remained at first as Al Downing got Floyd Robinson on a fly ball and Bill Skowron on a foul pop. Pete Ward then singled to right, sending Weis to third. Hershberger followed with his single.

Rally For Tie

The White Sox, held to two hits through seven innings by Downing, had rallied for a tie in the eighth on Floyd Robinson's three-run homer.

Downing walked Jim Landis and gave up a single to Weis with one out before Robinson clouted his 11th homer into the right field seats.

Belinsky Sent Back To PCL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitcher Bo Belinsky, suspended by the Los Angeles Angels baseball club for punching a sports writer, was optioned Tuesday to the Hawaii club of the Pacific Coast League.

General Manager Fred Haney said Belinsky had 72 hours to report to Hawaii.

In announcing the action Haney said, "We have 24 players fighting for a position in the pennant race—they should not be penalized by the actions of Belinsky or by the club."

Removing Belinsky from the Angels roster, he said, "has enabled us to bring in a left-handed pitcher we purchased from the Oklahoma City club.

10-Under Par 136 Sets New Record

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Jerry Pisano, the man who says he "can't hit them quite as far as the other guys," won the 48th annual Pennsylvania Open Golf tournament Tuesday [illegible] a record-shattering 10-under par 136.

The 36-year-old pro from the Radnor Valley Country Club completely mastered the 6,928 yard Hershey Country Club course, firing two straight 68's in the 36-hole two-day tournament.

Blending magnificent iron shots with a red hot putter, Pisano could do no wrong, coming up with just two bogies for the entire tourney, both on the 18th hole.

3 Straight Birdies

Even thunder and rain didn't bother him as he put together three straight birdies on the back nine to put the contest out of reach.

Henry Williams of the Berkleigh Country Club in Reading set the previous tournament record of 141 in 1954.

First-round leader Frank Garvin, also of the Philadelphia area, a relative newcomer to the Pennsylvania scene, soared to an 82 after Monday's single-round record 67 for a 149 and a six-way tie for eighth place.

Not Right

"I just couldn't get it going right," said Garvin, 24-year-old assistant pro at the Philmont Country Club. "I three-putted five greens."

Al Besselink of Philadelphia, who just missed a hole-in-one by inches on the 230-yard third hole, finished second with a 143. Using a three-wood, Besselink caught the edge of the green and his shot rolled [illegible] one inch of the cup before coming to a stop.

"I played as well as I know how, in fact probably better than I know how," the new champ beamed in the locker room after his victory.

"Normally Lousy"

"Normally I'm lousy on this course," said Pisano, playing in his seventh Pennsylvania Open. It was his first tournament victory of the year and carried a check for $750.

Defending champion Bert Yancey of Philadelphia, who shot a 74 Monday, ran into trouble on the first nine, taking four shots from a sandtrap. At this point, he decided to forego the remainder of the round and posted no score for the final 18 holes.

When told he had set a record, Pisano looked at his scorecard and quipped: "That's almost unbelievable, isn't it?"

A Big Flurry

Pisano came on with a flurry of birdies on the back nine, stringing together three in a row at 13, 14 and 15. Then he came out of the trees on the 352-yard 17th and one-putted for another birdie.

The TV Team

LOS ANGELES—The byword of American business these days is diversification. The need to diversify may, in most cases, be ascribed to (A) tax problems, and (B) the natural will on the part of business to propel its energies to the maximum.

For the first half this year, the Columbia Broadcasting System reported a net income of $23 million. Obviously healthy, it turned its vigor to another field and purchased an 80 per cent interest in the New York Yankees.

With this maneuver, the network, of course, dropped in its satchel the prime attraction of the American League. How it plans to deploy it, or what legal problems are involved is not the subject of the discussion here.

Of more vital concern is the growing inclination by those in the communications media in this country to participate in the promotional aspects of sports.

Television, radio and newspapers have made these intrusions. Publishing firms have acquired stock in baseball and football teams.

In Los Angeles, operators of a chain of radio and TV stations are linked to three sports franchises.

CBS can state that it will operate the Yankees autonomously, independent of the parent organization, but it is hard to believe that, willfully or not, it hasn't imposed indirect restraint on sports commentators throughout its vast radio and TV empire.

A television guy whose employer has invested $11 million in a baseball club isn't likely to remove all the wraps when he gets to the subject of that club. Or maybe even baseball in general.

Nor are the gentlemen working for the stations whose ownership is also invested in the Angels and Rams apt to erupt in an editorial outcry against either.

In situations where communications media have interests in sports franchises, attempts often are made at objectivity. Sometimes even at comment mildly critical. But they never get to the real innards of the matter, an oversight that is dangerous.

What results is curiously paradoxical, namely, the free enterprise system leading to a condition of managed opinion, which is more than a little contrary to the principles of a Democratic press.

Those in communications invested in sports may bray loudly that their franchises are fair game to all, but the restraint is still there, unmistakably, among their own people.

The practice of baseball, football and other teams controlling their own broadcasts has been scandalous enough. They have reduced their announcers to house men, charged with reporting straight news, but repressed in areas requiring unflinching editorial comment.

There have, of course, been some exceptions, but the general program has been one of restrained coverage in which the broadcasters have found it discreet to steer away from that which may be the least bit sticky.

Radio and TV alone don't shoulder all the guilt. It has been a practice for years of the nation's newspaper—even those not invested directly in sports—to dabble in the promotional field.

They sponsod events from which charities often benefit, but not without the sponsors sacrificing a measure of self-respect which they as newsmen should treasure.

When a paper gives unreasonable quantities of space to an event it is promoting, and it flavors its stories with a noxious layer of syrup, it is foresaking its obligation to its readers.

It is saying, in other words, that the press is free—free to print anything we damned well please.

Radio and television are in the entertainment business, but they also are in the news business, a fact of which they are always making a dramatic point.

People in the news business should be clearly detached from the financial aspects of events they are asked to cover and comment on.

Promoting isn't their function. It leads to ball playing in which one arm of the operation has an obligation to play ball with the other.

Entirely for this reason, the purchase of the Yankees by a communications giant like CBS is unhealthy.

We are drifting toward a state in which our own freedoms are threatening to create the type of managed opinion imposed upon those who don't have our liberties.

Ball playing, in other words, is for the Yankees, not for those whose business is something else.

At Tamiment

Strong Field In Kaye Golf

TAMIMENT — The sixth annual Danny Kaye Invitation golf tournament at Tamiment in honor of the world famous entertainer will have its strongest field this year when action starts Sept. 8 and continues through Sept. 10.

A lineup of 40 teams will compete in the 36-hole better ball of foursome team championship event for the Kaye trophy over the famed 7,110-yard championship Tamiment course. A like amount of pros, from all sections of the East, will compete in a 36-hole low gross event.

Included in this year's field will be Mountain View Golf Club of West Trenton, N.J., defending champion, which also won the title in 1961; Green Valley Country Club of Lafayette Hill, Pa., a former team champion, and Andrews Air Force Base, 1962 team champion and runnerup to Mt. View last year.

Army Brass

Army brass will be all over Tamiment this year. Three Air Force Base teams will compete for the title with Olmstead A.F. Base, near Harrisburg, and Dover, Del., Air Force Base challenging Andrews A.F. Base of Washington, D.C. for the honors.

Some of the country's finest amateurs, as well as pros, will be represented on the contending teams. Col. William Lesueur, a zero-handicapped player and champion at the Inverness Club, Columbus, O., will be the main strength on the Dover Air Force base team, which also will include Col. Rubel Acchuleta and Airman [illegible] Orwoski with pro Bill McBride.

Same Team

Andrews Air Force Base will have the same team that won the title in 1962 and finished runner-up last year, with Col. Frank Morris, a 5-handicapper, and Majors Bob Graham and Jack Statz, both handicapped at 6. George Pigott is the club pro.

Olmstead A.F.B. is rated as one of the strongest service teams in the Air Force command. This lineup will include Bob King, Frank Mellalo and Paul Jansen with pro Bill McBride.

Dennis Milne, 18-year-old Wake Forest College junior, who carries a 1-handicap, will be playing with the Trenton Country Club team, of which his father, George Milne, is pro. Dr. John Hewson, a 4-handicap player, and Dr. Emory Ungrady, a 5-handicapper, will make up the team.

Adam Returns

Doug Adam, famous ice hockey star and coach of the Philadelphia Ramblers ice hockey team, who won the individual low gross prize in the 18-hole handicap event for amateurs last year will be playing with Bala Country Club. Henry McQuiston, pro at Bala, won the low pro event last year.

Dick Coffee, Joe Corridoni, Tony Nini and pro Larry Ferrara, the combination which won the title twice for Mountain View Golf Club, will carry that team's colors again this year.

Joe Vaeth, pro at the Goose Creek C.C., of Leesburg, Va., will be one of the featured pro players. Vaeth is champion in the Mid-Atlantic area and will have in Jim O'Meara and John Alderman, a couple of strong amateurs for his team.

Other Pros

Other top pros who will be leading teams in the tournament include George Griffin Jr., Green Valley C.C., Lafayette Hill, former Philadelphia and Pennsylvania open champion, whose team won the Kaye tournament in 1959; Bob Hill, pro at Sunny Crest C.C., Brockville, N.Y. and Paul Kern, a touring pro from Windsor C.C., Windsor, N.Y.

Other pros in the tournament include Lee Armstrong, Northern New York State P.G.A. champion from Hudson River C.C., Yonkers, N.Y., Billie Booe, former Yale University star quarterback and pro at Country Club of Northampton County; Bill Bassler, Rolling Road C.C., Baltimore, Md., champion in his own district; Bob Ross, one of the leading money winners in the Philadelphia District P.G.A., and Art Jones, Country Club of York.

Tougher Test

This year's event for the Danny Kaye trophy will be a tougher test than the five previous tournaments. For the first time this year's tournament will be over 36-holes.

In other years it was 18 holes. The individual amateur 18-hole handicap event played in previous years has been dropped in favor of the increased 18 holes in the better ball of foursome team event.

New Attendance Record In NL?

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League is headed for a third consecutive season attendance record, according to league headquarters.

With the baseball season a little more than two-thirds completed, 9,054,304 paid admissions have been recorded at the 10 NL parks.

"Should the National League continue at its present pace during the remaining seven weeks of the season, the 12 million attendance mark will be reached for the first time in major league history," the league said.

Through games of last Sunday, the NL showed a gain of 91,908 over the same period in 1963 when the league set an all-time attendance record of 11,382,227 paid admissions.

Twosome Idea To Sponsor Fair

By Tom Wilson
Slate Belt-West End Reporter

BANGOR — George O. Ott, supervisor of the agriculture department at Bangor High School, made a chance observation 19 years ago that gave birth to the Blue Valley Farm Show.

Ott was explaining the Future Farmers of America program to Sam Hicks, then president of the newly formed Bangor Exchange Club. Ott said he would like to see a farm show put on by the boys in his classes at Bangor High.

Hicks proposed that the Exchange Club sponsor the event. Thus was born the ever growing Exchange Club fair.

This is just one of many accomplishments of Ott, who started the agricultural program at Bangor High and was one of the first agriculture teachers in Eastern Pennsylvania.

He began the program at Bangor High in 1935 with a class of 14 boys. He now has over 30 boys from each grade per year in his classes.

Ott is one of the few agriculture teachers to have taught in the same school during his entire career. He was the only agriculture teacher at the school until last year when Gary Oller was hired as his assistant.

Ott said Pennsylvania is fourth in the nation in dairy farming and third in dairy product value. Therefore he feels he has one of the most important positions in the school.

He said, technically, he is a federal employee, since the agriculture department comes under the Smith-Hughes Act of 1917. The act provides federal funds to match state funds for boys coming under the agriculture department. However, his immediate boss is the school, he explained.

Ott works on a 12-months basis, supervising projects of his students even in the summer months.

"We have a regular four year course," he said. "The only difference is that our classes are 90 minutes while others are 60 minutes."

Different grades take different subjects, he reported. All four grades are required to take farm shop, where they learn how to repair and maintain farm machinery and equipment.

The 9th grade also takes poultry and gardening classes; the 10th grade takes animal husbandry and farm crops; the 11th grade takes dairy husbandry, fruit growing and forestry; and the 12th grade takes farm management, rural law and rural sociology.

"Sometimes we go out on a field trip to judge dairy cows, poultry, swine, or some other farm product," he said.

Ott makes one demand on his students: they must all be Future Farmers of America.

He has had eight of his boys qualify as American Farmers, which is the highest degree of the FFA. He said only one out of 1,000 boys make this degree.

He has also had 58 boys make Keystone Farmer, which is FFA's highest degree in the state. Only two per cent of FFA members attain this degree, Ott reported.

"There are 10,000 agriculture students in 287 high schools in Pennsylvania and many schools have never had a boy make American Farmer," Ott said. The Bangor High agriculture department is tops in the state due to its record, he said.

The FFA and the Boy Scouts are the only youth organizations that have been granted charters by the U.S. Congress, Ott repored.

He said three of the agriculture students recently visited farms all over Europe. They paid $1,000 apiece to make the trip. "I have some wonderful boys in my department," he stated proudly.

Ott said the farm show is held each year to give the agriculture students a chance to show what they have done in the past year. To enter in the agriculture contest the boys must be in the FFA or a junior agriculture club.

Junior agriculture clubs are formed for boys not yet in the 9th grade because they can't join the FFA until then, he said.

The boys will enter a variety of projects, even though this is predominately a dairy area, Ott said. "I encourage the boys to buy dairy cows," he reported. All animals must be purebred and registered in the boy's name to be eligible for the contests, he said.

Ott, in thinking back to the first farm show, said, "The show has come a long way since 1945.

"I remember we held the first show in a rented 30 by 75 foot tent set up on one end of Memorial Field in Bangor Park. There weren't more than 80 exhibits.

"Last year we had over 400 exhibits and paid over $900 in premiums to agriculture students."

He said the show had been limited to Bangor High School boys until 1952. "That year we invited Pen Argyl boys to take part in the fair in order to stir up more competition among the boys," he said.

Ott stated, "The show has helped our community tremendously. In most towns people are interested only in high school sports. With the show, the adults are shown that the boys do more than play football, baseball and basketball."

Ott said one of the main reasons the farm show is held is to promote good will between the rural community and the people living in town.

Ott said he enjoys his work and intends to continue it as long as he can. Then he plans to settle back and enjoy life on his 160-acre farm located on the Stone Church-Belvidere Rd., Bangor, RD 2. He said the farm has been in the Ott family since 1810 and is now being run by his son, George Ott Jr., who is the eighth Ott generation to work there.

Commissioners Determine To Sign Everyone

Voting Registration Pushed In County

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners are determined to register everyone in Monroe County for 1964.

They're going to do it with outside registration. They're going to do it by reminding the citizens of the county that the vote is one of the most honored rights of citizenship.

All three commissioners — now attending a county commissioners' convention in Philadelphia — have expressed a desire to register as many eligible people as possible before Sept. 14.

Stuart Pipher spoke on the importance of registering and voting before the Central Labor Union last week.

He has also prepared a 21-point program whereby Pennsylvania's registry laws could be updated and speeded.

His program was put together by country-wide reports on voting registration. Recommendations in the program, he feels, could make registry much easier in this state.

The 21 points are:

1. Each state should create a commission on registration and voting participation, or utilize some other existing state machinery to survey in detail its election law and practices.

It is felt that a thorough review of practices will turn up bottlenecks and red tape, which can then be discarded.

2. Voter registration should be easily accessible to all citizens. In Idaho, where registrars are authorized to canvass house by house, and in North Dakota, which has no registration at all, voter turnout is very high.

Under this category, recommendations include door-to-door registration by non-partisan registrars, deputy registrars who cover the area, and precinct and mobile registration, whereby outlying voters can find registration points near their houses — in fire houses for instance.

3. State residence requirements should not exceed six months. Every year, 20 million adults move to new residences. Most find themselves without a vote because of long residence requirements.

4. Local residence requirements should not exceed 30 days.

5. New state residents should be allowed to vote for president. No American should be deprived of the right to vote for president simply because he has decided to move.

6. Voter registration should extend as close to election day as possible. No last minute rush will occur if door-to-door canvassing is done beforehand.

7. Voter lists should be kept current.

Permanent Support

8. No citizen's registration should be cancelled for failure to vote in any period less than four years. Permanent, personal registration is supported. And if a voter is removed from the rolls for failure to vote, he should be notified.

9. Voter registration lists should be used only for electoral purposes. Some people do not register because they are afraid their names will be placed on tax rolls, jury lists, and other non-voter purposes. Although the importance of these civic responsibilities are noted, registration lists should not be used for these purposes.

10. States should provide absentee registration for voters who cannot register in person. Too often absentee procedures are too strict.

11. Literacy tests should not be a criterion for voting.

12. Election day should be proclaimed a national day of dedication to our American democracy. If election day were a holiday, the voting privilege would be underscored. Now, as election day falls on a workday, voters must wait in lines at lunchtime and after work. Such waiting periods turn people away.

13. Polling places should be so equipped as to eliminate long waiting periods. Overcrowding creates an unhappy atmosphere.

14. Polling places should be open throughout the day, and remain open at least until 9 p.m.

15. The states should provide every possible protection against election fraud. Public confidence in the integrity of the ballot must be maintained.

16. Voting by persons 18 years of age should be considered by the states. By the time a person has reached 21, he is so far removed from the stimulation of education, that he may be lost as a voter.

With 18-year-old voting should come a special class in high school on the exercise of the right to vote, and registration programs in the classrooms.

Open To All

17. Candidacy should be open to all. High filing fees and undue petition standards or party hindrances should be eliminated.

18. The right to vote should be extended to those living on federal reservations. Throughout the U.S., there are more than 5,000 federally-owned places where many times the resident cannot vote. Since 1940, the states have been allowed to tax residents of these reservations. The result is taxation without representation.

19. Absentee voting by mail should be allowed for all who are absent from home on primary or general election day. In many states, a person must prove unavoidable absence to receive an absentee ballot.

If a person deserves to vote, he also deserves to vote when he is out of town. The law should not harass the voter nor be vexatious.

20. The poll tax as a standard for voting should be eliminated.

21. Each state should keep informed of other states' practices and innovations in election administration. When one state comes up with a good idea, it should be shared throughout the 50 states.

The first newspaper printed on the Pacific coast was the Oregon Spectator, a semi-monthly issued at Oregon City, Oregon, February 5, 1846, with Colonel William G. T'Vault as its first editor.
